AERONAUTICS AND SPACE, TOULOUSE'S FLAGSHIPS

Toulouse's aerospace sector is one of the world's leading industrial and innovative sectors, with 600 companies and over 85,000 employees.

Toulouse is the capital of aeronautics, both industrially, with the presence of Airbus, Thales and Latécoère, and in terms of education, with renowned specialised HE institutions.

Aeronautics and space represent 25% of French R&D, accounting for 10 billion euros in annual turnover in the region.

Reducing greenhouse gas emissions in the aviation sector is nowadays a priority in France. The government has set itself the objective of developing a "green aircraft" with net-zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2035.

In this context, the Franczal airbase in Toulouse has been chosen to host a hydrogen techno-campus dedicated to green aircraft by 2024, in partnership with Aerospace Valley (a French cluster of aerospace engineering companies and research centres).

Airbus company, whose central entity is located in Toulouse, also believes that hydrogen propulsion will help them create the first zero-emission commercial aircraft. Airbus is currently working on three concepts of hybrid-hydrogen aircraft.

Placed under the High Patronage of Mr Emmanuel MACRON President of the French Republic and Minister of Solidarity and Health Olivier Véran, this forum is the world's largest gathering of actors in the research, development and implementation of new vaccines to prevent and/or treat tuberculosis. The bid was led by: the Institute of Pharmacology and Structural Biology, the CNRS and supported by the Toulouse Midi-Pyrénées Federal University, and in partnership with the Convention Bureau.

Toulouse was chosen as the host city because of the scientific excellence present in the area and this choice was further explained by Isabelle Saves, Head of International Cooperation and Olivier Neyrolles, Director of the IPBS-Toulouse: "The organisation of the world forum in Toulouse presents several opportunities, notably in terms of the visibility of Toulouse's scientific excellence, particularly in the field of health. And so we embarked on a very competitive and demanding selection process at the end of which the Pink City was chosen as the host city for this 6th World Forum."

However, due to the current health context, the congress has switched to 100% digital and is postponing its physical presence in Toulouse for a future edition.
